Looking for a road trip that pays off? Lucky for you, Akwesasne Mohawk Casino Resort is just around the bend.

All of your favorite casino action is found in Hogansburg, New York. No matter your game, chances are you'll find it here. Will you be the next big winner, like Patricia from Saranac, NY? She won $14,536 playing the 88 Fortunes machine! Or like Ayupe from Tupper Lake, NY, who won $14,400 playing Triple Stars? Or how about John from Mooers, NY — he won $10,000 playing Triple Double Jackpot!

Hungry? There are several dining options, from casual to elegant fare. Treat yourself at the Maple Room Steakhouse, where you'll find dishes like aged steak, Alaskan king crab, and lobster on the menu. In the mood for something casual? Sticks Sports Bar & Grill features burgers and fries, wings, and nachos alongside tap beer and specialty cocktails. And don't overlook the Native Harvest Buffet, which offers everything from Asian specialties to Italian classics to prime rib.

Of course, there's plenty to do off the gaming floor. Make it a relaxing weekend getaway and book a stay in a luxury hotel room. Take a dip in the pool and then soak in the hot tub. The Sweetgrass Spa offers massages and facials, in addition to several other treatments for men and women alike.

Gaming, dining, hotel, AND a spa? Sounds like a trip you can't miss.

POETRY

"PERCEIVED BY INTUITION"

BY JAMES OLIVER RYAN

In March you save time, so drink from the wish- Perceived by intuition--- you know you can,
 ing pool

You will feel better kept---living on a wish

In March, it is Easter

You will have time to think of a mystical man

Perceived by intuition---you feel better kept

To have the luck of the Irish

Living with a love of music and dance

You know with a wish more than just spring is

To feel centered and warm

at hand

Like living in sunlit uplands

Films Bykids
Airs Tuesdays, March 1st, 18th and 15th

Their World. Their Films. These words best define the new five-part series, FILMS BYKIDS. FILMS BYKIDS pairs master filmmakers, including the late Albert Maysles, Neal Baer and Joyce Chopra among others, with teenagers from around the world to create short personal documentaries that educate Americans as they encourage international understanding and engagement about globally relevant issues. Emmy-nominated actress Ashley Judd serves as series narrator, introducing each 30-minute film in the five-part series that offers a perspective rarely seen in mainstream media.

IT'S HUUUUUUUGGGGEEEE!!!!!!

Valentine's Day At Jernabi Coffeehouse

---JOHN BERBRICH

As I've said before, there's nothing better than live music. I've also said that there's nothing better than local music. Now, when you combine these two elements—live music & local music—you've got a combination that cannot be beat.

And that was the story on this past Valentine's Day, as dozens of couples—plus some groups & solos—braved the frigid weather for an afternoon of fun, hot coffee, & hot live local music at the Jernabi Coffeehouse in Potsdam. And it was frigid. My car thermometer read minus seven as we arrived just before 1:00 & read minus four as we left, just after 5:00. In between everything indoors was warm & happy.

Kicking off the festivities was the Crescent Street Jam, which normally is a quintet but today performed as a tight 4-piece instrumental ensemble: piano, bass, drums, & sax. They played five mellow popular jazz standards, "Days of Wine and Roses" a representative tune.

Next up was Matt McKenna (guitar) and his wife Maggie McKenna (violin), the folks who organized this event. They started off with "Stand By Me," the old Ben E. King classic, then played Van Morrison's "Into the Mystic," and finished up with an old Civil War song, which featured beautiful and unexpected Southern-style harmonies.

Professor Donald McNutt from SUNY Potsdam treated the crowd to some quasi-Valentine's Day poetry with his own work and poems from Shakespeare and Keats, plus a dramatic reading of T.S. Eliot's "The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock." McNutt returned between various performers, reading poems by Ezra Pound and Walt Whitman, the lyrics to Peter Townshend's "Now and Then," and even some lyrics from an old Genesis song.

Polished funk-pop emerged when KTX hit the imaginary stage, featuring Kyle Tupper on keyboards and acrobatic lead vocals, Jon Dufore on guitar, Marcus Alvarez on drums, and Matt Gayle on bass and nice backup vocals. The band played two Stevie Wonder tunes, "Isn't She Lovely" and "Superstition," George Benson's classic, "Turn Your Love Around," and "Girlfriend," by Smokey Robinson.

Following KTX, a solo guitarist and vocalist came forward, Alan Darrah, who is the regular drummer for the local band Ten Cent Green. A fellow with a sense of humor, Allen played a lot of country songs with which I am unfamiliar, but I did like his drinking song, originally performed by George Jones. Made me thirsty, always the criterion by which a drinking song is judged.

Next up, performing as the Caramelo Trio, was Oscar Sarmiento on guitar and Stephen Farina on a kind of soft brush percussion. Oscar sang in Spanish a beautiful Cuban lullaby, then played an instrumental samba and a voiceless version of The Beatles' "All My Loving." They were then joined by Oscar's son Sal Sarmiento (thus completing the Trio) and played one more song, which I didn't recognize, and which Sal sang in a marvelous deep bluesy growl, deeper and bluesier and growlier than Tom Waits.

Following Caramelo was an acoustic duo, Mark Lyon on guitar and Camilla Ammirati on banjo. They have excellent singing voices individually and sound wonderful together. Among the several songs played were "Your Cheating Heart," by Hank Williams Sr. and "Payday" by Mississippi John Hurt, plus my favorite the fun original song "The Devil's Laundromat," written by Ammirati, and I'm sure we all have our examples of demonic laundromats.

Two young women, Laurel Kuxhaus and Sandy Steinberg, followed with some classical pieces performed on oboe and flute, at least one of which was written by Mozart.

And the festivities closed with a rousing set by David Wells and The Gathering, featuring Wells on lead vocals and guitar, Amber Nezezon on vocals and violin/fiddle, Greg Jadlos on 5-string bass, and enthusiastic young powerhouse on drums, Michael Jadlos. In addition to several originals, including a wild Celtic fiddle tune called "Swallowtail" and one wonderful drinking song (making me thirsty again), they played Van Morrison's "Moondance," a haunting rendition of Fleetwood Mac's "Gold Dust Woman," and Train's "Meet Virginia."

This entire event was a fundraiser for the Ives Park Concert Series, held in Potsdam from mid-August to early October. Much thanks to the McKennas, all the musicians and patrons, and of course to the staff and management at Jernabi's for helping to make this a fun and successful venture.

Dave's Country Corner

---DAVID WILLIAMS

Chris Stapleton's musical accolades continued out in L.A. last month at the Grammy Awards where he picked up two golden gramophones. One for Country Album of the Year and another for Best Country Solo Performance. His album Traveller has resonated well with country fans and now along with being recognized at the award show Country Radio has finally taken notice as well. It helps that you the fans call in and request his music, so if you want that traditional sound that Chris brings don't be afraid to call, email, text or however you request at your favorite country radio station to let them know, that's what you need to do.

The performance Chris gave along with Bonnie Raitt and others in a tribute to the late blues legend B.B. King was phenomenal! I can't say that for all the country performances on the Grammy's though. I thought Little Big Town was excellent but Luke Bryan doing a Lionel Richie song? While the sentiment was there it just didn't work, it was just plain bad. A good singer, a great song...but they don't always mix together well and come out ok. That was a big misfire in my mind, sorry Luke!

Here's an update from last month on Two Way Crossing. They finished up their latest EP, which is now titled Déjà Vu. It will be available for purchase on their website, iTunes and other music outlets starting on March 15th. There are some great tracks on the EP, so make sure you pick up your copy. The website to purchase a cd copy is www.twowaycrossing.com

Chuck Wicks captured many a hearts with his big hit "Stealing Cinderella," and he returned to the music spotlight with a 2016 wedding song called, "Always," the latest track off his sophomore album Turning Point which hits stores on February 26th. There are 11 tracks on his new and, "Always" is his most personal song.

Larry Gatlin & the Gatlin Brothers have spent 40 years in the music business and have made countless friends in the music world. But one of the closest relationships they made was with the late Johnny Cash and his lovely wife June. Because of this close bond that they shared Larry and his brothers dedicate and sing "Help Me" at every concert date. It happened to be June's favorite Gatlin boy song; they even sang it at her funeral back in 2003. They were close, miss the Cash's immensely but appreciate all they learned and the friendship they had. I wanted to share this story with you. We see these singers on TV, hear them on the radio and sometimes forget they are people too just like us sometimes. I had the honor a few years back of talking with Larry Gatlin, he's a real and warm and genuine guy. What you see and hear is what you get. Let's not forget, yes they may live in big houses. Drive a fancy car or two and travel all over. They are people too. They need friendship, love, understanding and all they things we do in our lives as well. Enjoy the music and appreci-

Betrayal At House On The Hill

---DR. ANTHONY BETRUS
SUNY POTSDAM
BETRUSAK@POTSDAM.EDU
THE GAME CONNOISSEUR

Crack! The bolt of lightning struck the giant oak dead center, and the decades old branch that extended over the road fell with a hard slam across the hood of the church van. The four late night travelers inside were badly shaken, but physically unharmed. The driver, Father Rhinehardt, ever calm and rational, saw that the oak had caught fire, igniting the unidentified liquid that was pouring from the front of the van. He turned to his travelling companions and urged them to exit the van, and then to quickly make their way to the house at the end of the long driveway about a hundred yards down the road from their disabled vehicle. Making their way up the steps, they saw some dim lights flickering in some of the windows of the large mansion. The front door was slightly ajar, and they pushed their way into the entrance hall, out of harm's way for the moment.

The Priest, a self-identified luddite, did not own a cell phone, so he turned to his broad shouldered graduate assistant, Ox Bellows, and asked him to call for help. Ox pulled his arms back from the protective hold he had around their two younger companions, 13 year old Peter Akimoto, and 9 year old Missy Dubourde, to reach into his pocket. After a minute of fiddling with his phone, he informed the Priest that they were out of service, and, at least for the moment, they were on their own. Before they could say another word, the impetuous girl Missy ran off through an open door to their right, only to have the ceiling collapse on top of her. Fortunately it was only plaster, but it did leave her with some bad bruises. And thus began another rousing game of Betrayal at House on the Hill.

Betrayal is a board game created by Bruce Glassco, an English Professor at Piedmont Virginia Community College with an affinity for B-horror films. The game earned a Gamer's Choice Award in 2004 for best board game while in its first edition, and in 2010 Avalon Hill, a subsidiary of Wizards of the Coast, picked up the game and released the 2nd edition. The game plops the players down in the middle of a purposefully campy, yet decidedly suspenseful environment, where events unfold to move the narrative along. Glassco incorporates all of the classic horror tropes into the game through the rooms, events, items, and omens that players encounter and acquire throughout the game (a basement with no exit, a mystic elevator, a sacrificial dagger, a spirit board, a mysterious groundskeeper, secret stairs, dark dice, etc...). The core game mechanic involves exploring the house by revealing random floor tiles, ensuring that no two games are ever the same. And, like any good horror film, there is always a betrayal. The game starts with everyone working together, that is until the "haunt," when one of the main characters sides with the powers of darkness against the others. This is the point in the game where, in my opinion, it gets really, really good. So good in fact that each time I've played the game, the events after the betrayal formed a narrative that has stuck with me, weeks or even months later. For a game to accomplish this, it has to have something special going for it. Let me do my best to tell the end of the story (post betrayal) from our most recent game.

The Priest looked down at the piece of paper he had just picked up, and saw a drawing of a dragon. He then went into a dreamlike state, looked up with wide and unblinking eyes, and beckoned the now corporeal creature to enter through the front door. He spoke coldly "Kill them... kill them all." Ox Bellows stood alone in the foyer, looking into the eyes of the dragon that had just appeared in front of him, while Missy and Peter were exploring together in the basement. The dragon breathed fire, and Ox jumped aside, leaving him singed, but otherwise unharmed. The dragon then advanced on him and attempted a bite, which missed by the slimmest of margins. The possessed Priest, not thinking rationally, ran from the room, intent on retrieving items from the vault on the second floor that had thus far eluded the explorers. Meanwhile, in the basement, Missy had just picked up a shield, and upon hearing the commotion upstairs, yelled out in fear. Ox stormed down the secret stairs they had discovered earlier, finding Missy and Peter healthy and safe, for the moment. Seconds after he entered the basement, the dragon appeared, advancing on them. The dragon breathed fire again, this time singing Missy badly. The dragon then turned on Peter, who dodged aside, running for his life. Peter then ran to a previously undiscovered room, finding in it a suit of ancient armor. Ox and Missy ran to Peter, and the Dragon did not hesitate, breathing fire on them yet again. Missy heroically held up the shield, protecting them all from the fiery attack. Peter, in an act of self sacrifice, then ran from the room, yelling at the dragon as he did. The dragon followed, giving Missy and Ox a moment to consider their strategy, which essentially came down to giving everything to Ox so he would be at full strength when he took on the dragon. Ox donned the armor, and Missy then gave him the shield and a spear she had discovered earlier. At that moment they heard a scream from the next room, and Ox entered to see a lifeless Peter on the floor. At that moment the Priest appeared, having retrieved the contents of the vault. Missy, fearing for her life, took out a revolver she had found earlier and shot the Priest in the face, killing him instantly. During the scuffle the Dragon advanced on Missy, and picked her up in his mouth, biting down hard, and then throwing her lifeless body into the wall like a rag doll. Ox then turned on the dragon, enraged by what had just happened, and drove the spear hard and true through the its chest, killing it. Ox looked around him, his companions all dead, and knelt down in despair. The house had once again claimed its victims.

ST. JOHN'S CONSERVATORY THEATER ANNOUNCES 2016 SEASON

Alice in Wonderland, Oliver Twist, and The Little Match Girl Offered

---RANDY DODSON

St. John's Conservatory Theater announced their extraordinary upcoming 2016 season which includes some pretty iconic literature-to-stage adaptations. Their lineup includes Alice Isn't All There, based on Lewis Carroll's Alice in Wonderland, Twist, inspired by Charles Dickens' Oliver Twist, and Matchsticks, based on Hans Christian Andersen's The Little Match Girl.

Alice Isn't All There, which originally opened the theater in 2014 to packed houses, is a musical comedy with a book, music, and lyrics by award-winning writer/composer Brazillia R. Kreep (a.k.a Richard O'Donnell), and will open this June for a two-week run. Originally staged as Reader's Theater, whereby scripts were held and costumes minimized, this Alice will be a fully staged production with new arrangements/orchestrations by Ogdensburg Free Academy student Ryan C. McNally.

In October, their all-original production of Twist, a musical comedy with a book, music and lyrics by R. O'Donnell with additional music by O'Donnell & McNally, will play for two weekends. In this production the infamous Artful Dodger returns but Oliver is now Olivia (gender bending is a trademark of the company), and promises to be quite the musical comedy romp.

In December, the Christmas season will receive a delightful family entertainment with the musical Matchsticks, whereby a young girl sells matchsticks on the streets of New York during one of the coldest nights of winter. With each strike of her match, a lavish Christmas scene appears to keep in good spirits.

The St. John's Conservatory Theater experience is a unique one, too. It's quite intimate in their 100 seat venue as actors enter through the audience, even interacting with them to great effect. They're also known for their improvisation and (for the would-be actor) actually inviting member of the audience onstage as one of the characters. These signature practices keep things lively as ever and are undeniably hilarious to see.

JCT principal creative staff includes Producer and Director R. O'Donnell, Musical Director and Choreographer Angela Conzone Dwyer, Arranger and Orchestrator Ryan C. McNally, Scenic and Prop Designer Stephen Chambers, Costume and Makeup Designer Karen Fischbeck Carmany, Technical Director and Production Coordinator Christopher Dwyer, and Stage Manager Sadie Smith. Collectively they have over five decades of professional theatrical and academic experience including regional, stock, bus and truck, off-off-Broadway, off-Broadway, and Broadway stages.

FLASHBACK ANSWERS

1. Bob Marley, in his song by the same name. Trench Town, a neighborhood in Kingston, Jamaica, was the birthplace of reggae.
2. Choise and the Golden Hammers, giving them dual vocalists, guitar players, bass players and drummers. The British band continues to tour.
3. The Clovers in 1955. Started in 1946 and breaking up and reforming multiple times, over the years the group has had approximately 30 members.
4. Ronny and The Daytonas.
5. "The Night They Drove Old Dixie Down," by The Band in 1969, followed by Joan Baez's version in 1971. The song tells of the last days of the Civil War. Baez's version changed the lyrics, leaving out "Stoneman's cavalry."
