POV: What Tomorrow Brings
Airs Wednesday, November 2nd at 9pm

What Tomorrow Brings goes inside the very first girls' school in a small Afghan village. Never before have fathers here allowed their daughters to be educated; now Taliban threats heighten their misgivings. From the school's beginnings in 2009 to its first graduating class in 2015, the film traces the interconnected stories of students, teachers, village elders, parents and school founder Razia Jan. While the girls learn to read and write, their education goes far beyond the classroom as they discover the differences between the lives they were born into and the lives they dream of leading.

"EVERYTHING"

BY JAMES OLIVER RYAN

In our world in November
 Surrounded by----natures processes
 We make our way through----Life
 Our frontiers hold----Everything Experiences----Expressions----and----
 Signals
 Bringing about---Ideas---of a Certain
 Kind
 Ideas unseen---they sometimes---
 Materialize
 So goes the---Complexity---of the Human Mind,

In our world men gather together with a
 need to socialize
 To give Thanksgiving and to fill appetites,

In our world
 The language of life---Aloud it Cries
 To give Thanks---and to be Giving---In Everything
 In these Graces---a man---will be Immortalized

"NO SCRIPT GIVEN"

BY JAMES OLIVER RYAN

These words will make me no money
 They leave my pockets empty---Nothing
 do I find
 Nothing---moves me more than ideas
 taken from space/time
 I want to claim only those things that shape my life
 Ideas---matters in motion---they are streaming in my mind

To fill a void
 The nature within me is to help mankind
 To keep me employed,

To altruistic ideals I do subscribe---and so
 I try
 For it has been deemed---that I must write or die

All For Loving You (2016)

The Alexis P. Suter Band-from American Showplace Music

---JOHN BERBRICH

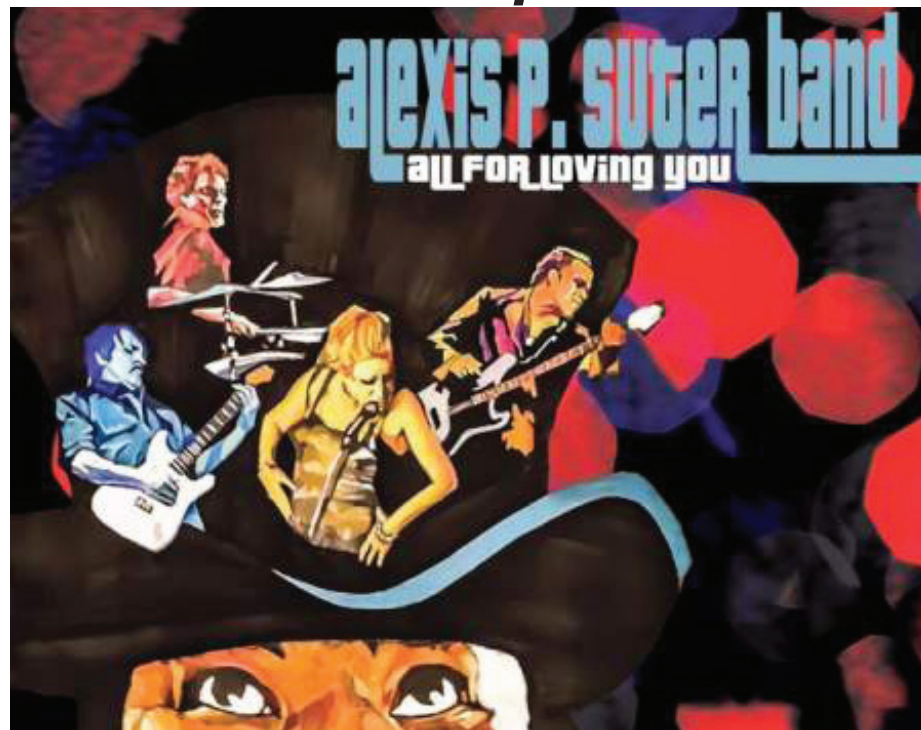

This 11-song CD contains good solid blues-rock featuring powerful vocals and transcendent lead guitar. The powerful vocals are provided by the eponymous Alexis P. Suter, a gal who sings in a big bass baritone, raw and expressive. The transcendent guitar is provided by Jimmy Bennett, a string-bender who's always where he needs to be and who occasionally busts out with some unstoppable mammoth chord bombs. Behind these two you'll find Ray Grappone on drums and Peter Bennett on bass, keeping the pace steady and reliable. Behind this quad struts good-looking soulful Vicki Bell on backup vocals and on-stage grooves. Together this quintet delivers blues ranging from lachrymose to roadhouse raunchy.

The title track, "All for Loving You," is a catchy blues ramble filled out by John Ginty's organ and Bennett's slide guitar. "Living in the World," is more of an up-tempo number featuring brisk guitar and organ.

Tribal drums and Suter's big voice introduce "Don't Ya Tell," which really takes off when Bennett's guitar joins the fun. "Circumstance" starts out slow, but develops a real soul-shaking hook; this one has the durability of a radio hit, as repeated listening brings elevated pleasure. The CD closes with a faithful rendition of the Lennon-McCartney classic, "Let it Be."

My favorite song is the dramatic "So Long," in which Bennett's guitar cranks into the realm of delirious psychedelic stone riffs, and the band puts aside its strict blues mode, leaning heavily into monumental hard rock. Suter shouts her words of desperation, and Bell backs her up, the band hammering away, until the explosive climax.

Suter grew up in Brooklyn and began her career touring the northeast states. For the past few years the band has performed in many blues festivals and Suter herself has twice been nominated for the Koko Taylor Award at the 33rd Blues Music Awards. Catch them if you can at a venue near you.

Hurricane Mathew And Other Funny Stories

---Vic Clevenger

Every morning I get up it's the same thing, a cup of coffee, my journal and my joke book. Each of these play an important role in getting my day going. The cup coffee, of which there are several throughout the day, is pretty self-explanatory, especially to other coffee drinkers. My journal, a minimum of three pages each morning, is me connecting my brain to my pen to get some creative juices flowing. Many a story, TV show idea and joke has resulted from this process. Then there's the joke book. This is where I have written several hundred jokes and joke premises. Some are really good while others are, "What was I thinking?" Which brings me to today which begins the same as every other day.

As I sit here writing, people are still recovering from Hurricane Matthew even while many of us here in Florida keep an eye on his little sister Nicole. Roads have collapsed onto the beaches; many are still without power or have just gotten it back days after his visit and this is just Florida. Those folks in the Carolinas still need our prayers, thoughts and support even when the flood waters recede. For those who've never dealt with a hurricane, it takes a while to get life back in order. However, even in the midst of all this, there have been some funny stories (at least I think they're funny) to come out, so if I may, I will open my joke book (because I wrote them down) and relate a couple of them to you.

When there's a hurricane all eyes are on the news and weather people. This was no different.

As Matthew approached the coast of the Sunshine state reporters were dotted up and down the beaches telling us viewers what it was like where they were and what we could expect where we are. One such reporter was doing just that, telling us the severity of the wind heading our way. In trying to describe this storm he said these words, "Tom, as you can see by the palm trees, the wind is really starting to pick up here. So much so, that I've almost had to grab my ball cap a couple times." This reminded me of the time the reporter back on 2004 was reporting on a hurricane here in Florida and the wind was so severe he could barely stand straight, that is until the lady behind him strolled on by without a care in the world.

Another story I found funny in all of this was the reporter in Daytona Beach standing beside a downed street sign reporting all the damage currently being done by this hurricane. In his shot he was recounting of all the signs he has seen. His words were, "As you can see Bob, we have a street sign down and there is another one down and another." Then to his cameraman the reporter, with excitement in his voice, anxiously says, "Quick, pan over there. WOW! Another sign is down. So as you can see the damage here is widespread!"

The point is, even in the midst of the suffering and tragedy there is still some funny stuff to bring out a smile or two. King Solomon wrote in Ecclesiastics 3, "There is a time to cry and a time to laugh." So as we seek to help those who are suffering to rebuild through their tears, we can also help them to laugh again.

Dungeon Crawling on the iPad: Butt Kicking for Goodness

---DR. ANTHONY BETRUS
THE GAME CONNOISSEUR

Some games are designed for and play well on your phone, and some games really shine on a tablet's larger screen. For the past few months I have tinkered with some of this year's top rated iPad games, in a deliberate move away from the deluge of freemium time-sucking clones that I warned you about last May (Phoning it in). I wanted a game that was legitimately fun, and one that had not fallen into the shallowly addictive gameplay trap that many (most?) mobile games seem to have fallen into. My first stop was to browse this year's top-rated iOS games on MetaCritic. As I perused, Guild of Dungeoneering stuck out, especially in terms of art style, as it reminded me of the quirky online RPG Kingdom of Loathing that I grew fond of a few years ago. So I ponied up the $4.99, downloaded the game, and started playing. Dungeoneering was similarly clever and quirky, but with a twist: instead of playing the hero, you play the role of the Dungeon Master, placing rooms and treasures around the hero, coaxing him (or her) toward your objectives. Once a hero encounters a monster, you engage in combat via a simple deck-based card game. The game also has an end, which can be reached after a little under 10 hours of gameplay. This was refreshing, as the designer's goal was not to keep you coming back to view ads or to pay for microtransactions, but to provide a fun and enjoyable (and finite) game experience.

Buoyed by this experience, I pushed my price point up a bit ($9.99) and went after a game that I knew to be fantastic on the PC (originally released in 1998), and that had been ported to iOS: Baldur's

Gate. At the time of purchase I was at the airport, and about to embark on a cross-country plane trip, and was ready to begin downloading. Unfortunately using the airport's wifi was a no-go (large downloads were blocked), so I needed to tether to my iPhone and download via the cell towers. Later, on the plane, on the runway, with seconds to spare, the download completed, and I was good to go (pro-tip, download via home or work wifi network ahead of time). Baldur's Gate itself is an extremely in-depth game, based on Advanced Dungeons and Dragons 2nd edition rules. For those of you not familiar with AD&D, not to worry, there is a simple tutorial that runs you through the game basics, it really is not that complicated. It has a rich story that involves slow and deliberate planning for turn based exploration and combat. The core-story is complimented by a wide variety of Non-Player-Character (NPC) and their associated side-quests. By far my favorite NPC is Minsc, a barbarian that carries around a hamster companion named Boo, whom he converses with and calls upon for inspiration during battle. In general, the writing and dialogue is top notch, so whatever path you take (good or evil), you will find it to be rich and rewarding. So fast forward just under five hours, and I finally looked up, having brought my band of travellers through a number of towns and dungeons on the Sword Coast, only to realize that we were landing. What I hoped for was a simple and pleasurable old school, in-depth RPG experience on my iPad with no countdown timers, no pay for play, and no internet connection required, and that is exactly what I got. Quest complete.

First Friday Jam at The TAUNY Center November 4

Past Jams at The TAUNY Center

On Friday, November 4th from 7:00-8:30 pm TAUNY invites musicians and friends of all ages to join us for our monthly First Friday Jam hosted by fiddler Gretchen Koehler and singer/guitarist Barb Heller, host of NCPR's String Fever. TAUNY's traditional music jams are open to people interested in gathering with North Country neighbors to play old time fiddle tunes and songs from American folk traditions.

Participants are invited to bring an instrument, your singing voice, or just yourself and come on down to The TAUNY Center for this fun monthly jam. Fiddles, guitars, percussion, and/or other traditional instruments as well as all levels of musicians, singers, and step dancers are welcome. To help all players feel comfortable, tunes will be played at a variety of speeds throughout the evening. Players will be invited to pick tunes from the set list--round-robin style--and begin the tune at their speed. Sheet music, words, and chords are provided for those who would like to read along.

This Jam is sponsored by Parker Maple.

The TAUNY Center is located at 53 Main Street, downtown Canton. TAUNY is a non-profit organization that showcases the folk culture and living traditions of New York's North Country, offering opportunities to experience, learn about, and reflect on issues related to life in our rural region. More information is available at tauny.org.

Dave's Country Corner

---Dave Williams

I hope everyone is enjoying autumn and the little ghosts & goblins didn't clean out your candy stash completely. Now it's time to focus on Thanksgiving and the many blessing we've enjoyed throughout the past year. As this issue finds its way to you I'll have celebrated a one-year anniversary of my move to the Cornhusker state. The great thing about country radio is the listener's are fantastic no matter where you go. It's been a year of growth in many ways for me and many blessing have come my way. I had the chance to see Alan Jackson live this year, so I can scratch that one of my bucket list. I introduced the station's listeners to my friends in Two Way Crossing which was a lot of fun, and I've had the opportunity to interview some really amazing artist this past year. Folks like Charlie Daniels, Johnny Lee, Gene Watson, John Conlee, Preston Brust of LOCASH, Jeff Hanna of the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band and Suzy Boggus. All I can say is that while I miss my family & friends in upstate New York, I've been blessed by taking a chance and moving out of my comfort zone and I'm so happy that I did.

Now onto some country news, Alan Jackson has released Precious Memories Collection which is available exclusively at Wal-Mart. It's a two disc collection that features Precious Memories, Precious Memories Volume II, as well as, two previously unreleased songs – "It's All About Him" inspired by Denise's book of the same title and "That's The Way" which is a song that Alan sang to Denise at their wedding.

If you'll remember Precious Memories was originally recorded as a Christmas gift for Alan's mother, and just a handful of copies were shared with close friends. Jackson eventually agreed to make the music available to fans after much prompting to do so by his family & friends. Then seven years later, Alan along with his wife Denise, revisited the list of their favorite hymns they compiled for the first album and Alan then decided to release Precious Memories Volume II. Both albums went on to sell a combined 2.3 million copies. This collection would make a great gift for any Alan Jackson fan on your Christmas List or just because!

Jana Kramer & dance-partner Gleb Savchenko continue to wow the judges and burn up the dance floor on ABC's "Dancing With The Stars". Kramer has proven not only can she act and sing but can hold her own amongst other country stars who've appeared on the popular show including Kellie Pickler who won her Mirror Ball trophy. Will Jana be the last country singer to add the Mirror Ball to her mantle? Catch her on "Dancing with the Stars" and be sure to vote & support her efforts!

As we close in on our family gatherings I wanted to let you know that Christmas music this year will have a soulful country sound, with the latest album from T. Graham Brown. You can pick up a copy of the chart-topper's first holiday album, Christmas with T. Graham Brown in Cracker Barrel Old Country Store® locations nationwide. The project was produced by T. Graham Brown and Tony Griffith, and is also available on iTunes, and other digital retailers.

Let's take a look at some new music coming out during the month;

Nov 11 – Ronnie Dunn; Tattooed Heart, Garth Brooks & Trisha Yearwood Christmas Together, Nov 18 George Strait; Strait Out Of the Box 2, High Valley; Dear Life, Miranda Lambert; The Weight of These Wings, Nov 25 Garth Brooks Gunslinger

Thanks for checking out Dave's Country Corner. I invite you to join me each month as we catch up on all thins country coming out of Nashville and wherever great country music is found. You can find me online at 106.com with my Dummy & Video of the day, fun facts & tips, interviews and more, just go to Programs and click on Dave. 1. Brooklyn. In fact many people think the name of the song is "Last Exit to Brooklyn."
2. Lou Christie, in 1966. A second, milder version had to quickly be recorded after so many complaints caused the song to be banned from the airwaves in many locations.
3. The Box Tops in 1969, and Roxette, the Swedish pop duo, in 1986.
4. Ambrosia, in 1970. Most of the original group is still together and still touring after all these years.
5. "Copacabana," by Barry Manilow in 1978. The lyrics describe a 1940s Havana showgirl, Lola, and her lover Tony, a bartender at the club. When a mobster named Rico tried to seduce her, Tony attacks him and is killed. Thirty years later, Lola still sits there pining for Tony, her lost love.
